

factory of inaudible sounds

The extensive use of almost industrial arrangement stands for the eternal conflict between common logic and the freedom of an invisible collective unconscious. Machines are sad and perfect at the same time they symbolize characters and processes. I use a sentimentally empty language in order to express and provide a sentimentally empty logic.

